Design scenario

Worksheet

Activity:

Design scenarios retell the story of the use scenario, with the same three personas and the challenges they face. However, this time, they interact with a new system that addresses some of those challenges. Working through the details of a design scenario forces you to consider the details of how and when users will interact with your system. Note that, although you are 'telling a story', your focus should be on how users interact with the new system, not the details of their lives. Use title cards to explain their motivations, and shoot video to illustrate each interaction point. Change the scenario if it will better illustrate the new design. Be careful, though—this is not a tutorial!
